COURSE OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this activity, participants will be able to:

- Identify common spiritual/emotional problems of depression, anxiety, grief, and loss.
- Understand the impact these issues have on treatment outcomes.
- Recognize the affect these issues have on the overall well-being of patients and their family members.
- Identify current psychopharmacologic treatments for common mood manifestations of spiritual/emotional problems.
- Demonstrate an understanding of the range of psychiatric and psychological therapies available for patient care.
- Identify opportunities for interdisciplinary approaches to meeting the spiritual/emotional needs of patients in the participants' settings.
- Demonstrate increased awareness of the benefits of collaborative treatment models for patients with spiritual/emotional issues.

The conference will address the following competencies: patient care, medical knowledge, practice-based learning, interpersonal and communication skills, interdisciplinary team skills, system-based practice, and quality improvement.
