

EFFECTIVELY ENGAGING YOUR COMMUNITY IN LOCAL ACTIVISM: A CASE HISTORY

Zoe Smith, Loyola University Chicago Stritch School of Medicine

Abstract:

The Maywood Community Gun Buy-Back Program is a successful model of a program in which the medical student activist can successfully act as liaison between community organizations to create programs for that community. We will discuss the role of the medical student in advocacy, tips on identifying key community participants and strategies for marketing a community program.

LOYOLA MEDICINE

*Loyola University Chicago
Stritch School of Medicine*