Pathology of the Female Genital Tract II - Uterus

Reading: Robbins Basic Pathology, 10th Edition Chapter 19, Pages: 713-726

Educational Objectives:

- Describe acute and chronic endometritis in terms of etiology and histology
- Describe endometriosis and adenomyosis in terms of morphology and clinical manifestations.
- Define the 2 different types of endometrial hyperplasia: Hyperplasia with atypia and without
- Define Endometrial Intraepithelial Neoplasia and describe its relationship to endometrial cancer
- Recognize clinical and pathological features (including gross and the histological features) of endometrial carcinomas: endometrioid type and serous type
- Identify risk factors, clinical symptoms, histologic classification, staging and grading of endometrial carcinoma
- Describe leiomyoma in terms of epidemiology, gross and histologic features, and clinical manifestations
- List the key pathologic and clinic features of leiomyosarcoma
- List and describe causes of abnormal uterine bleeding by age group.
- Define “dysfunctional uterine bleeding”